

UGED1815 Philosophy as a Way of Life 哲學與生活之道
Course Outline

(The primary teaching language in class is Cantonese.)

Course overview

This course guides students to think about the ultimate practical question—How should we live?—from the perspectives of ancient Greek and Roman philosophers, such as Plato, Aristotle, the Stoics, and Epicurus. Their profound reflections on the ways of life have produced a variety of proposals for how one should live. This course will look at and examine the thoughts on which these proposals are based, as well as the responses of critics at their time and modern-day assessments. Students will understand and reflect philosophically on such ethical concepts as excellence, virtue, and happiness. They will also learn to appreciate how these various proposals can make a distinctive and practical contribution to their search for a good life.

Learning outcomes

1. Formulate the theoretical principles underpinning ways of life.
2. Demonstrate familiarity with major practical skills of ways of life.
3. Identify and characterize the central ideas of ancient Western ethics.
4. Illustrate how ancient ethical thought can be applied to life in contemporary society.
5. Acquire philosophical thinking skills and critical disposition.
6. Articulate the meaning and the goal of life.
7. Describe the essential elements of good life.

Topics

1. Introduction: On Philosophy as a Way of Life
2. The Epicurean Way of Life and the Life of Pleasure
3. The Stoic Way of Life and Following Nature
4. The Aristotelian Way of Life and the Pursuit of Happiness
5. The Platonic Way of Life and Contemplating the One

Learning activities and workload

In-class:

1. Lecture: 2 hours each week.

Out-of-class:

1. Reading: 3–4 hours each week on the required and suggested readings.
2. Essay: an average of 2–3 hours each week on preparing and writing essay assignments throughout the term.

Assessment scheme

Since a major aim of this course is to develop students' ability to interpret, analyze, and generate philosophical arguments through discussion and writing, the assessment methods are designed to encourage participation in class discussion and learning through argumentative writing.

Task nature	Description	Weight
Midterm examination	Take-home examination. Essay questions will be given to students three weeks in advance of the due date.	40%
Final examination	Centralized examination	40%
Class participation	In-class discussion	20%

Academic honesty and plagiarism

Attention is drawn to University policy and regulations on honesty in academic work, and to the disciplinary guidelines and procedures applicable to breaches of such policy and regulations. Details may be found at <http://www.cuhk.edu.hk/policy/academichonesty/>

With each assignment, students will be required to submit a signed declaration that they are aware of these policies, regulations, guidelines and procedures. For group projects, all students of the same group should be asked to sign the declaration.

For assignments in the form of a computer-generated document that is principally text-based and submitted via VeriGuide, the statement, in the form of a receipt, will be issued by the system upon students' uploading of the soft copy of the assignment. Assignments without the receipt will not be graded by teachers. Only the final version of the assignment should be submitted via VeriGuide.

Grade Descriptors for Essay Examinations

[Excellent] A (85–92) or [Very Good] A- (80–84)	Argument <ul style="list-style-type: none"> You faithfully reconstruct the author's positions, and prove this knowledge by knowing the argument(s) supporting the theses in the text. You evidence independent and self-initiated thinking and understanding of the arguments and philosophical problems through your ability to present your own counter-arguments and possible replies to counter-arguments. Theory Analysis <ul style="list-style-type: none"> You exhibit thorough understanding of the relations of the themes presented in the various texts. You demonstrate a comprehensive understanding of the relations between the various subjects and authors discussed in the course. You demonstrate an above-average facility in judgment by applying the various theories to cases and situations presented in the course of the exam.
